

The TV Programme

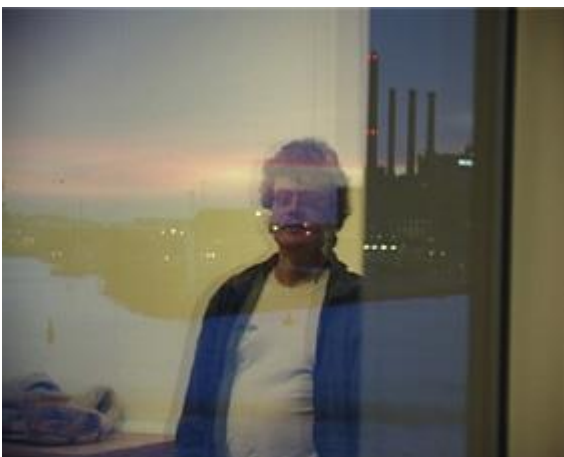

The TV-Programme is a reportage about a group of homeless that squats a big empty office building at the attractive harbour front of Copenhagen. From this site they talk about the paradox and political problem of having so many empty offices “laughing homeless in their faces”!

To perspectivise the issue we interviewed responsible politicians and experts: The right wing Mayor of Copenhagen responsible for housing, a left wing member of local parliament and the board of housing issues and a property market analyst.

The focus is on the way our society prioritise and and how choises that are beneficial in one context increases homelessness.

On the street searching for the right office.

Michael being interviewed.

Happy to be inside

Michael and Mia watching the view

Søren Pind, Mayor of Copenhagen responsible for housing.

The break-in.

Peter, Michael and Mia relaxing.

Our first 'scene shooting plan meeting' inside.

Mia preparing to film a night scene.

Steen and Peter.

Where is the solidarity?

